Govt survey on street vendors to extend schemes to them

Times News Network

New Delhi: The government on Friday launched a programme for socio-economic profiling of beneficiaries of PM Street Vendors' Aamir Nidhi (PM SVANidhi) scheme and their families to extend other central schemes to the masses.

According to housing and urban affairs ministry, 25 cities have been selected for the programme in the first phase. Prior to the complete rollout, the ministry will run a pilot project in six cities — Gaya, Indore, Kakinada, Nazimabad Rajnagar and Varanasi.

"The socio-economic profile will identify potential eligible beneficiaries and their family members for social central government schemes and facilitate linkages. Besides, the states/UTs would also have an option to extend their respective state/UT specific welfare schemes to them. Quality Council of India (QCI) has been partner for the programme," the ministry said in a statement.

On Friday, nearly 20,000 lakh street vendors have applied for getting subsidised loan of Rs 30,000 for their businesses and 1,500 lakh applications have been sanctioned under the PM SVANidhi. A total of 80,000 lakh applications have got the loan amount. The scheme aims to cover 50 lakh street vendors.

The ministry said the scheme should be seen as an instrument for outreach to them and their families for their holistic development.

Residents told to wear helmets to counter injuries

Eluru: Amid cases of people suddenly collapsing in Andhra Pradesh's West Godavari district, health authorities have issued instructions to wear a helmet because even when riding a bicycle or a two-wheeler they are suddenly falling. West Godavari District health officer Dr. Mohan said, "We had there is a high risk of sustaining injuries and the helmets' prescription applies to everybody in Eluru."

Cases of people falling off from vehicles were reported. They were in considerable numbers, autorickshaws drivers fell down while driving and starting their vehicles. Motorcyclists have fallen Amarnath: Reports of various waterborne infections including cholera, typhoid, and hepatitis are on the rise in the region as the possible cause for the 'mystery' disease in Eluru that has left over 600 people hospitalized since December. While the National Institute of Nutrition (NIN) found temporary residues in rice and pesticides on tomatoes, the Indian Institute of Chemical Technology suspected that pesticides may have triggered the acute symptoms. However, all research bodies said they need more time to get to the exact cause of the problem. How the lead and the water entered the human body remained a puzzle.

Scientists of various research bodies presented their preliminary findings to chief minister Y.S. Jagan Mohan Reddy through a video conference on Friday. It is clear from the
